American Southwest Theatre Company at New Mexico State University presents public performances of “A Wrinkle In Time.”

The American Southwest Theatre Company presents the beloved children’s story “A Wrinkle In Time” live onstage. The story of two children who must rescue their scientist father by Madeleine L’Engle is adapted for the stage by John Glore. It will play seven times for local school children and will have only two public performances on October 30 at 7:30 and 31 at 2:00 at the ASNMSU Center for the Arts.

Just when Meg Murry wants to curl up in bed and hope for someone else to solve all of her problems, she gets launched into the adventure of a lifetime. Traveling through space-time to distant planets, together with her extraordinary little brother, and their new friend, Meg sets out to rescue her father from a force so powerful that it threatens to control everything in the universe and beyond. Professor Larissa Lowery, director of the show says the science fiction story is ultimately about how members of a family can travel through their own separate adventures and can come back together stronger and more caring than ever before. The show is ideally suited for 4 – 6 graders.

Lury directs the show, with an all student cast. Student designers are Dena Hurab, set, Megan Thompson, costumes and Drew Kelley, lights. Tickets are $5.00 for everyone. Shows are Friday, October 30 at 7:30 and Saturday, October 31 at 2:00. Call 646-4515 for information or go to www.nmsutheatre.com.
